
CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	James I. Porter	vii
Introduction	James I. Porter	ix
Translator's Note	Jane O. Newman	xlvii

Part I. History and the Philosophy of History: Vico, Herder, and Hegel

1. Vico's Contribution to Literary Criticism (1958)	3
2. Vico and Herder (1932)	11
3. Giambattista Vico and the Idea of Philology (1936)	24
4. Vico and Aesthetic Historism (1948)	36
5. Vico and the National Spirit (1955)	46
6. The Idea of the National Spirit as the Source of the Modern Humanities (ca. 1955)	56

Part II. Time and Temporality in Literature

7. Figura (1938)	65
8. Typological Symbolism in Medieval Literature (1952)	114
9. On the Anniversary Celebration of Dante (1921)	121
10. Dante and Vergil (1931)	124
11. The Discovery of Dante by Romanticism (1929)	134
12. Romanticism and Realism (1933)	144
13. Marcel Proust and the Novel of Lost Time (1927)	157

Part III. Passionate Subjects, from the Bible to Secular Modernity

14. Passio as Passion (1941)	165
15. The Three Traits of Dante's Poetry (1948)	188
16. Montaigne the Writer (1932)	200
17. On Pascal's Political Theory (1941)	215

18. Racine and the Passions (1927)	236
19. On Rousseau's Place in History (1932)	246
20. The Philology of World Literature (1952)	253
Appendix: Sources for Translated Citations Jane O. Newman	267
Bibliographical Overview James I. Porter	271
Index	277